

Synopsis: A Rake's Redemption

Jilted by his betrothed for his brother's ducal title, Alexander Ashley seeks revenge by systematically seducing half the ton's matrons, giving each one an ivory silk negligee to remember him—and their one evening of pleasure—when they have to put up with their dull, boring, but titled, husbands.

When he wins the services of an Irish female horse-handler in a card game, he decides to rub more of the ton's noses by teaching her to be a lady and then presenting her at the Prince Regent's ball.

What he doesn't know is that Inis Fitzgerald is the niece to an Irish duke and is every much an aristocrat who's running from an arranged marriage she doesn't want. However, Irish humor being what it is, she can't resist playing along with Alex's little game...until the stakes become too real for both of them.

